FINDING AND DISCUSSION OF RESEARCH

This chapter presents the finding and discussion of research. The data collected from the observation and interview which are discussion based on the theory and concept from the previous chapter. The chapter is presented based on the research focus stated in the first chapter.

A. The Finding of Research

In the finding of research, the researcher described about the analysis of adjective clause error on essay writing made by members of Fun English Club. The tutor of Fun English Club uses essay writing by using adjective clause to make easier in essay writing especially in argumentative essay. When the members make essay writing, they get difficulty on arranging adjective clause to the essay writing. In this learning, the tutor uses essay writing to solve the members' difficulties on adjective clause, but the members still get difficult to make it. In this research, researcher has intention to observe how the tutor gives a lesson about the error analysis on adjective clause in essay writing especially argumentative essay, then researcher try to interview and observe what the adjective clause errors on essay writing and how the members get adjective clause error on essay writing.

1. The Adjective Clause Errors on Essay Writing Made by Members of Fun English Club 2019

Based on the research focus, the researcher wanted to know about what the adjective clause error on essay writing made by members of Fun English Club 2019.

a. The Result of Observation

In this activity, the researcher had discussed with the tutor of Fun English Club Program dealing with the teaching learning activities especially in teaching adjective clause at Fun English Club Program. The name of tutor was Ach Fauzi and he gave statement that:

“Fun English Club is one of an organization at IAIN Madura. The Members are not only from English education department but the other departments of IAIN Madura also include and participate to learn At Fun English Club. Such as, Arabic education department, management education department, banking department, English education department, and etc. they have intention to learn more about English material. Some of members of Fun English Club do not know about English and they have low basic about English material especially in writing because most of them are beginner”.

In conducting the activities of teaching learning process, the researcher take two meeting on doing observation, the first observation on 27 July 2020 the tutor constructed the teaching learning process at bilingual IAIN Madura. It was started at 15:00 o'clock, the tutor gave material and also the example dealing with adjective clause to the members of Fun English Club. In the middle of the activity, the tutor asks to the students if the students understand or not about the adjective clause material. In the end of the lesson the tutor also gave assignment to do at the home to the students to write adjective clause in essay writing and the assignment itself should be submitted to the tutor of Fun English Club in the next meeting.

The second observation was conducted on 28 July 2020. It was started at 15:00 o'clock. As usual, the tutor gives greeting to the members and asks about the members' condition then the tutor gives a jargon to make more spirit in leaning process. In the main activity the tutor ask the assignment which has been given in previous meeting and the tutor instruct to take the assignment forward to correct the task and return to discuss what is not understood yet about the adjective clause. The tutor begins to check the task which has been taken forward by the members, there are some members who do not give the assignment for some reasons and the other members give the assignment to the tutor. The tutor start to check the assignment, there are some corrections from the tutor to the students related with the adjective clause especially in connecting the dependent of adjective clause to independent clause and also the members gets the adjective clause error in determining the subordinating conjunction of the adjective clause in the sentence. After knowing the adjective clause error which was made by the members, the tutor explains again about the adjective clause which is not understood by the members. The tutor mostly explains about the function of the adjective clause because most of the members still do not understand about the function of adjective clause so that by giving the explanation more related to the function of adjective clause, the members can get better understanding on the adjective clause itself.

After doing discussion and observation with tutor of Fun English Club.

The researcher also had gotten an observation's checklist of the tutor.

NO	Activities	Yes	no
1	Tutor asks the students to write adjective clause in essay writing	√
2	The students are defined the topic before starting the writing.		√
3	The students ask about the topic which will be written.	√
4	The students write argumentative essay based on generic structure.	√
5	The students have difficulties on including adjective clause in essay writing.	√ conjunction of the adjective clause namely who, which, that. To solve the student's difficulty on the adjective clause, the student always uses conjunction that to avoid the error of the adjective clause itself.

B. Discussion of Research

The researcher would like to present about the students' difficulties on getting adjective clause error in essay writing made by members of Fun English Club 2019 especially in making argumentative essays as the basic concept of compiling a topic of discussion. Adjective clause itself is to combine the sentence to make simple sentence in essay writing.

The difficulty referred to a widespread lack of understanding in using the structure of the adjective clause. The reasons which are most often mentioned are the lack of literacy, mistakes on determining the subordinating conjunction of the adjective clause and difficult to combine the sentences which have the same antecedents. So here are the results of discussion which would like to be presented by the researcher according to the answers from the research focus of this research.

1. The Adjective Clause Errors on Essay Writing Made by The Members of Fun English Club 2019

Based on the observation guideline used by the researcher, there were two meetings which the researcher observed done it on 27 July 2020 at Fun English Club, in the process of the observation the researcher had found some difficulties in the ongoing teaching and learning activities. Including students lack of understanding in using adjective clause to the sentence marked by giving question to the members to share to the members. All of the members listened well what the teacher explains to the members. The teacher also convey the lesson well, with the basic and common methods which is used by the other English teachers.

In examining the adjective clause error, it is very evident when teaching and learning activities take place. Starting from the confusion of those who fell it. There are some members who understand the concept of the structure of adjective clause. But there is common reason for them to understand it, namely for those who previously had literacy skills. After knowing members with various abilities it is really different respond to this research. Because this is the adjective clause error, there will be adjective clause error for those who do not understand the basic structure of the adjective clause itself. Based on the research focus that researcher intended is that to identify what the adjective clause error on essay writing made by members of Fun English Club 2019. So in this below is the answer from the members based on the interview and observations:

a. Confused on Determining Subordinating Conjunction of Adjective Clause

Based on the result of interview, the researcher got the members' difficulties on adjective clause error in essay writing. Here are the answer based on the interview.

1) The answer from A W expressed that my difficulties are when I want to put the subordinating conjunction of adjective clause, I sometimes get confused to choose the right subordinating conjunction of adjective clause especially which, whose.

2) The answer from IB

my difficulties on adjective clause are I am sometimes confused in taking subordinate clause to take to the sentence like as whose, of which, whom, which and I do not know how to arrange two sentences which is the same pronoun to be one sentence. From those statements the researcher.

3) The answer from CRN

Corina as one of the members of Fun English Club 2019 said that usually I am confused the using of who, which, that, etc.

From all of the answers above, the members had the same relation that the members had gotten a confusion on determining which subordinating conjunction of adjective clause is appropriate to be taken to the sentence. The students get adjective clause error because the members lack of understanding of the function of each subordinating conjunction of adjective clause. It is also related with dulay's statement, Dullay stated that there are some surface strategies taxonomies, there were omission, addition, miss formation, and miss ordering.⁹ The researcher only emphasized on miss formation because the miss formation is so related with the members' difficulty on adjective clause error on essay writing that Miss formation errors come from the use of wrong item in morpheme or structure. Miss formation is divided into regular past, auxiliary, preposition, conjunction and possessive pronoun.

The structural functions of adjective clause have four functions which have been mention above, there are clause, those are as subject, as object, as object of preposition and the last is as possessive.¹⁰

The conjunction of adjective clause as subject those are who (used to subject person), which (used to subject on thing) and the last function as subject is that (used to general either person or thing).

The conjunction of adjective clause as object, those are whom (used to person), which (used to thing) and that (used to person or thing).

The function adjective clause as object of preposition are of whom of which, to whom, to which use whom to person and use which to thing, the preposition depend on contents of the sentence.

The function of adjective clause as possessive, those are whose (used to person), of which (used to thing).

b. The Difficulty on Arranging The Adjective Clause in The Sentence

From the result of interview, the researcher found the students' difficulty on adjective clause error. The members have the difficulty on adjective clause error which was experienced by members of Fun English Club 2019, sometimes the members feel difficult to arrange the adjective clause to independent clause. Here are the members' answer based on the result of interview.

1) Answer from A J

When I try to put to the sentence, sometimes I get error on connecting first sentence to the second sentence and I have difficulty on determining conjunction which, of which, whose. It is rather difficult to put to the sentence.

2) Answer from SM

As I have experienced from my difficulties is when I want to combine two sentences to be one sentence and I sometimes get error on adjective clause in possessive which is the subordinating conjunction whose, of which.

3) The answer from AND

The last answer comes from Anindia as one of the members of Fun English Club who stated that my difficulty is how to determine the adjective clause to combine to the sentences.

From all of the answer above, it can be concluded that the members of Fun English Club 2019 have the adjective clause error which become the members' difficulty in essay writing. The members get the difficulty on connecting and combining the dependent of adjective clause to independent clause. The way to combine the dependent of adjective clause to independent clause was stated by Betty Azhar that the adjective clause uses pronoun to connect the dependent clause to the dependent clause. The adjective clause pronouns are who, whom, which, that and whose and the adjective clause pronouns are also called as “relative pronoun, to combine the dependent clause to the independent clause is the adjective clause must closely follow the noun it modifies.¹¹ The researcher can conclude that to combine the dependent clause must use pronoun to connect to the independent clause and to combine the dependent clause to the independent clause is the dependent clause must closely follow the noun which is modified so that the dependent clause can be combined to the independent clause as the form which has been stated above.

2. How The Members Solve Adjective Clause Errors on Essay Writing Made by Members of Fun English Club 2019

During the interview and also the observation, the researcher asked about how the member could solve the adjective clause error in essay writing made by members of Fun English Club 2019 which become the problem of the study.
