The theories will be discussed like kinds of speech act, the context of sarcasm, and character educational values that on the meme. The researcher identify and tries to presenting the finding that be found on tenth different accounts that have sarcasm meme. The researcher tooks out each of the three sarcasm memes on inside every facebook account that shared the meme for analysis.

There are three points that will be explained by the researcher. The first is about kinds of speech act used on sarcasm meme at facebook account, the second is about the context of sarcasm on memes at facebook account, and the last is about the character educational values used on sarcasm memes at facebook account. To observe the data needed, the researcher take an observation non participant to get some sarcasm memes at facebook. In this case, the researcher directly become a participant to be easier getting the data. To understand the concept, Here are the explanation can be seen on the table below:

1. What are kinds of speech act used on Sarcasm Memes at Facebook Account?

a. Speech act

Searle also introduced some ideas about speech acts that could be considered various possible actions applied to discourse. Searle stated that language communication is not merely a symbol of words or sentences, but rather to be a product of symbols, words, or sentences in the form of speech acts.<sup>1</sup> In theory of speech acts, every utterance essentially contains three dimensions. The first is locutionary, the second is illocutionary, and the third is perlocutionary.

1) Locutionary Act

Locutionary act is the basic of utterance, or producing a meaningful linguistic expression. Austin stated that locutionary act is roughly equivalent to uttering certain sentence and reference, which again is roughly equivalent to meaning in the traditional sense.<sup>2</sup> It means that locutionary act used when someone wants to stating something.

2) Illocutionary Act

Illocutionary acts are the acts of saying something which has purpose or intended meaning. According to Austin, illocutionary acts refer to utterances which have a certain conventional force such as informing, ordering, warning, undertaking, etc.<sup>3</sup> It means that illocutionary act is not only used to informing something but it also can doing something.

3) Perlocutionary act

Perlocutionary act is performing an act by saying something. George Yule stated that we do not, of course, simply create an utterance with a function without intending it to have an effect. This is the dimension, the perlocutionary act.<sup>4</sup> It means that the utterance of perlocutionary can give an effect for the other.

2. How are the context of sarcasm on Memes at Facebook Account?

a. Sarcasm

Elisabeth Camp also tells that sarcasm is stating the opposite of an intended meaning especially in order to sneeringly, slyly, jest or mock a person, situation or thing. It is strongly associated with irony, with some definitions classifying it as a type of verbal irony intended to insult or wound. Sarcasm can also be used in a humorous or jesting way depending on the intent of the person speaking. Sarcasm is used most often times in a humorous manner, but can also express annoyance or anger. It is often used as proxy to other forms of expression. For example, instead of becoming angry and yelling at someone in a conflict, a person might choose to use sarcasm as an alternative.<sup>35</sup>

1) Propositional sarcasm

For this type, the form of sarcasm itself is a proposition, where the propositional sarcasm is also the most obvious type of form. This type directly leads to the intent or purpose of the speaker who is intended to “insinuate”. However, between the statement of proposition and the intent of the speaker is actually opposite.<sup>36</sup> In this case, sarcasm that will be explained through an example as like this:

“James must be a real hit with the ladies”

From the example above, it does not appear the element of “insinuate”. But, the situation that occur tells that James is not someone who is popular among at the girls. Actually, a speaker just want to express their statement with the purpose to mock. The other forms that will be classify on the table below:

2) Lexical sarcasm

If propositional sarcasm most closely approximates to the traditional implicature model, lexical sarcasm provides the best case for a semanticist postulation of sarcasm. Lexical sarcasm displays an even tighter connection to an evoked evaluative scale than propositional sarcasm. Where the evaluative scale in propositional sarcasm might be merely pragmatically evoked, lexical sarcasm most naturally targets expressions which denote the extreme end of a conventionally-associated, normatively-loaded scale expressions like “brilliant, inspired, genius, diplomat, and thrilled” so that the sarcastic inversion contributes a value at the scales’s extreme other end. Even lexical sarcasm is often expressed in positive but it still has negative effect.<sup>37</sup> For this type that will be explained by an example, as like this:

“If Alice so brilliant, then she’ll be the perfect dupe for our little plan.”

From the example above, the statement using a positive word like “So brilliant:.. But, the statement is also accompanied by negative effect like “the perfect dupe”. So, it shows that the speaker does not sincerely praising Alice as an intelligent person. The other forms that will be classify on the table below:

3) Like prefixed sarcasm

Like propositional sarcasm, like prefixed sarcasm targets an entire proposition. But, where bare propositional sarcasm is quite flexible in which of the various propositions associated with an utterance it can target focal content, presuppositions, or implicatures, as generated by sentences of any grammatical mood like prefixed sarcasm only combines with declarative sentences, and only targets content that determined by composition of the constituent expressions conventional meanings plus lexically focused pragmatic processes. This inevitably includes the sentence's focal content, and often only that content. So, like prefixed sarcasm is not cause an ambiguity.<sup>38</sup> There is an example for this type, it is as follow:

like it's a nice cool day today.”

From the statement above, the speaker states that the weather on that day is cool. While in reality the weather is hot and the sun also shining brightly. Of course, the statement easier to understand by the content of the sarcasm speech partner, because it is supported by a conflicting situation. #### 4) Illocutionary sarcasm

In this type, sarcasm is not only seen as an internal element utterances, but also as an intergrated whole including other speech acts accompanying it. Illocutionary sarcasm covers all general implicatures even in special circumstances, such as speech that expressing compassion, praise, and others.<sup>39</sup> There is an example for this type, it is as follow:

“How old did you say you were?”

For the statement above, a speaker asks the age of the speech partner. In fact, a speaker does not really want to ask about it. It is just insinuate. The speaker just giving the question as a form of insinuate to a speech partner who is acting childish. So, the form of this sarcasm will giving a reaction from the speech partner.
